

Colleen Quigley: *Searching for Optical Wonder

Vernissage: September 12th, 6-9pm

Exhibition Dates: September 12th – October 21st, 2015

XVA GALLERY, Al Fahidi Historical Neighborhood, Bur Dubai

XVA Gallery is pleased to announce Colleen Quigley's upcoming solo exhibition Searching for Optical Wonder. In this body of work Quigley experiments with techniques using wax, reflective materials, ceramic, collage and laser cut acrylic, to create a visually stimulating experience for the viewer. Quigley's interest lies in sensorial effect and perception of what color is in isolation, in changing light, in surface and texture, and how color appears to us in a context with another color within a given shape. Using Islamic design as a framework in which to structure and cultivate her exploration (with compositions focusing on repetition, continuous variation and juxtaposition of color and pattern), Quigley successfully encourages the viewer to contemplate the materiality of art (the handmade and the machine made), the sensory relationship between the viewer and the art object, and the physical experience in experiencing art.

Please join the artist and XVA for the opening night, from 6-9pm on the 12th of September in the Al Fahidi Historical Neighborhood. Dubai-based composer and conductor Barnaby Priest will open the exhibition with musical performance he has written for harp and flute. His recent work concentrates on exploring a sound world that uses a limited diatonic palette. His music is associated with the Nuova Consonanza branch of post-minimalist music.

Artist Statement:

My new body of work combines Islamic patterns and the mediums of encaustic, collage, ceramics, reflective materials and laser cut acrylics to explore ways in which color and light interact upon these various surfaces and create a visual perception that goes beyond looking at the surface. I want the work to establish an immediate relationship with the viewer.

The Mashallah Red, Blue, and Yellow Series combine hundreds of hand-printed and glazed, small ceramic hexagonal tiles embedded in milky, translucent encaustic (beeswax and resin) which float up at different depths creating a visual and harmonious sensory perception of color and light.

The Reflecting Blue, Yellow and Red series are the results of experiments with multiple compositions which combine Islamic design with reflective materials and laser cut acrylic. These compositions focus on repetition and continuous variation and juxtaposition of color and pattern. My interest lies in sensorial effect and perception of what the color is in isolation, in changing light and how color appears to us in a context with another color within a given shape – its resulting interaction and our sensory perception of it. The use of reflective materials creates a momentary flash as if to announce the arrival or presence of something of note. The pieces are meant to capture the attention of the viewers and then to interact with them as the perception of the reflecting surface changes depending on where the viewers' position is in relation to them. The Islamic motifs call attention to the presence and dynamism of Islamic cultural patterns in a multicultural setting.

The Reflecting Wall is a collection of repeating intricately cut acrylic mirrored Islamic designs in which the viewers become part of the work and reflections create new colors and reflections depending on where the viewer stands. Ultimately I want the viewer to think about the materiality of art (the handmade and the machine made), the sensory relationship between the viewer and art, and the importance of the physical experience in experiencing art.

With this body of work, I try to develop a complex yet simple visual vocabulary to explore perception of memory (time and place), the transient nature of color and light, and the materiality of art.
